LINCOLN ESTATES HAS SCHOOL CONSOLIDATION PROBLEM ON HANDS

A meeting was held in the Ann Rutledge school in Lincoln Estates October 4 to determine the sentiment of the people regarding the proposed consolidation of the Ann Rutledge and Gatter school districts.

Many opinions were expressed and in the final analysis there was one reason against consolidation and two in favor.

Those favoring consolidation pointed out that the heavy enrollment of pupils in the Ann Rutledge school makes it necessary that the four lower grades have the morning hours and the four upper grades be forced to do their school work at home. Mrs. Walker, the teacher, has volunteered to work two extra hours each day.

Two farm owners opposed the consolidation plan giving as their reason that their children would have to go to school if the school was located in the community.

Due to lack of co-operation at the meeting, a petition will be circulated from house to house and will later be turned over to the school trustees. They in turn will make the final decision.

A census will also be taken some time in the near future of every family in the Lincoln Estates. Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. J. C. Vaughn will cover the south side of Lincoln highway and Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Swatik the north side.

If possible the community is planning on a two room building with a basement. The cost of the building has not been estimated.

Because he attended both board meetings during the past year, Mr. Swatik, a director on the Gatter School board and who incidentally was the only director from both schools present, took over the meeting.

August Maue, acting Will County Superintendent of Schools has offered his full assistance.

Attorney Herbert Folkers of the Frankfort school board enlightened the people of the community on many of the financial angles.

Fire Prevention Wk.

Most fires are due to easily preventable causes. Keep premises clean and orderly and free from combustible trash and litter.

Be sure every match and cigarette is OUT before discarding it.

Do not burn bonfires near dry grass or weeds, nor close to wooden fences and buildings. Watch them until they are burned out.

Do not light bonfires on windy days. Do not clean with gasoline. Do not keep or use gasoline indoors. Keep fire away from it.

Discard worn or frayed electrical cords. Do not place pennies behind fuses when they blow out. Do not tamper with fuses.

Repair chimneys if mortar is loose. Do not overheat stoves and furnaces. Never use kerosene to start fires in stoves.

Use metal containers when removing ashes. Never use wooden ones.

If every person is careful, few fires will start and few persons will suffer loss of life or injuries from fire.

MANY HEAR FAMED EVANGELIST

Throngs have been gathering from near and far to hear the internationally famous evangelist, "Gipsy" Smith, who is speaking at the Bethany Reformed Church of Roseland, Chicago in an old-fashioned community evangelistic and revival campaign every night this week continuing thru Sunday, October 15th. Dr. Smith was born in a gypsy tent 83 years ago; spent his entire boyhood as a gypsy. His mother was drowned when torrential rains burst through a flood wall and the family was suddenly submerged. Gipsy's mother lost her life in this flood. This was a turning point in the family history for the father turned to religion.

Gipsy was already preaching full time by the age of 20 though he never spent a day in school.

He has often appeared before royalty; his command of the English language is well high perfect and his diction simple and yet majestic. He has girdled the globe in his travels many times and has preached in every country and larger cities in the world. This will probably be his last visit to Chicago-land as he intends to return to his native England as soon as the war

The Sucker State ranks 6th in the current class in the number of men represented and is 2nd in three-year representation total. CLOTHES RATIONING AVERTED

Few people know how close the country was to clothes rationing a few months ago, at the peak of the war. The key figure who helped prevent it was shrewd Pittsburgh department store wizard Irwin Wolf.

Wolf and WPB boss Donald Nelson held several conferences on the problem, at which Wolf pointed out that retailers, worried about shortages, were buying all the clothes in sight, and hoarding huge amounts of one item while having no stocks of other goods.

Finally, Nelson asked Wolf to sit down with Joseph Weiner, head of the civilian supply section of WPB, John Davidson, representing the wholesalers, and Earl Reed, another key WPB official. After going over several involved proposals, they retired from the conference room and drafted a simple order which limited all retailers to the same amount of stock they had during the previous year. The proposal was immediately adopted by Nelson, and clothes rationing was avoided.

Nelson now calls Wolf's plan "one of the saviors of the civilian supply situation in the U. S."

NOTE—One effect of Wolf's program is that merchants will carry over only small amounts of "ersatz" merchandise in the postwar period, will not be stuck with poor-quality merchandise to unload on the money-flushed public.

AFTERMATH OF V-DAY

The White House has just received a confidential report showing that 66.4 per cent of American families have saved only 11.6 per cent of the money put aside by the nation during war time. In other words, the upper one-third bracket of the people tucked away 88.4 per cent.

The same report points out that, immediately after V-day in Europe, most plants which continue operating will cut overtime, thus dropping wages from 15 to 25 per cent. One of the problems officials face is a wild rush to cash war bonds, not for lush spending, but for bare necessities of workers in middle and lower-income brackets.

All these figures now have President Roosevelt concerned about what will happen in the first weeks immediately after the war. The president's economic advisers are telling him that continued prosperity in the postwar period will require his greater personal attention to domestic problems.

They figure that, if the nation can successfully come through the first few weeks after the armistice, then the demand for peacetime goods, long denied the public, will pick up national prosperity. However, the first weeks of readjustment are going to be tough.

DOLLAR-A-YEAR MEN

The full effect hasn't yet percolated down from the top but, before he left for China, Donald Nelson signed a new set of rules governing the appointment of — and the continued employment of — WPB dollar-a-year men. It has been felt first in the textile, clothing and leather divisions but gradually is beginning to result in changes elsewhere in the agency.

Dollar-a-year appointments for the war emergency period were okayed by the White House four years ago, the appointments to be made at the discretion of the agency chiefs without regard to existing law. Criticism of the early dollar-a-year appointments gradually resulted in a tightening of the policy, but Nelson never really put his foot down until last month.

Major dynamite in the order is Nelson's pronouncement that "No person may be employed on a dollar-a-year basis who would be required by his position on the War Production board to make decisions directly affecting his own company or its competitors." The same section bans dollar-a-year employment of all lawyers, all trade association officials, members of WPB industry advisory committees, or any individuals convicted of anti-trust violations.

Dozens of dollar-a-year men within WPB are daily called upon to formulate policy affecting their own industries, and consequently their own companies and competitors. At the same time, Nelson's order does not reach the even more serious problem of salaried employees in a position to make decisions affecting the companies from which they came to the government — or to which they will go when they leave Washington.

JESUS' UNDERSTANDING OF MAN

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 12:9-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—And needed not that any should testify of man; for he knew what was in man.—John 2:25.

What is a man worth? That depends on your point of view. In a museum stands a collection of small jars containing minerals, water, etc., which make up the body of a man, and which are valued at less than a dollar. But there is more to man than his body.

And that "more"—intellectual and spiritual—is what determines his real value. Jesus understood (yes, and now He understands) man, and places a high valuation on him. That is worth knowing in a world where the price of humanity is often figured on the basis of his usefulness in warfare or the factory.

Jesus really understands man. He knows his

I. Need (v. 9).

The first thing Jesus saw in the synagogue was not the leaders, or the beautifully appareled rich, or the learned scribes. He saw a man with a withered hand, one who needed His help. The enemies of Christ complimented Him by expecting Him to see the crippled one—and they "watched him" (Mark 3:2), for it was the Sabbath.

Do we see the real need of humanity? Does it speak to us and prompt us to helpful action? If not, are we like our Lord and Master?

II. Value (vv. 10-12).

They who would not hesitate to save a sheep in distress on the Sabbath did not want the man to receive help. Thus they put property above the person of man, and showed their low valuation of man.

The dignity of man's personality, the fact that he is made in the likeness and image of God, the great potentialities which exist in every man—all these should urge upon the Christian church the need of a new and higher estimate of the worth of a man—or a boy or a girl. Let us look at them with God's eyes, and seek to win them for Him.

III. Faith (v. 13).

No doubt this man had tried countless times to straighten out that withered arm. It was the very thing he most wanted to do, but it was quite impossible. Is Jesus then charging him with the impossible, asking him to do what cannot be done?

No, for He saw in this man the desire to be whole and faith in God's ability to make him whole. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan puts it well: "We turn from a contemplation of a withered hand and look at the face of Jesus. The moment we do this, we know that the command is possible because He commands it, however impossible it may appear. To look into that face must inevitably have meant to be certain that He was not there to reveal disability, save as He was also there to put an end to it."

IV. Enmity (vv. 14, 15a).

Jesus saw the good in man. He also saw the evil. He was not unaware of the hatred and the dark devices of His enemies. Until the day when He was to permit them to take Him captive in the garden, He withdrew from them, leaving them to their evil designs and their wicked unbelief.

Sometimes when we see how the wicked seem to flourish in our day, how they appear to go on without let or hindrance, we are prone to forget that there is One who "sits in the shadows," and who knows and notes not only their ungodly deeds, but also their sinful thoughts.

He knows, and that is enough for us. Let us not be seeking vengeance, nor fretting ourselves because of evil doers. God knows, and He will care for it all.

V. Weakness (vv. 15b-21).

Men hesitate to admit their weakness to one another, always trying to keep up the appearance of strength and success. Well, there is no need of that kind of subterfuge with God. "He knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust" (Ps. 103: 14).

Jesus sympathized with those who were physically ill and He healed them (v. 15). What comfort there is in knowing that He is present at the sick bed of every believer, and that He is able to heal as it may be His will and purpose. Only He can do it.

But there is something even more precious here. Man is weak not only physically but spiritually. His spiritual light may at times be nearly out, just a smoldering wick instead of a brightly shining lamp. We might be tempted to say that it is so weak, so disagreeable, so smoky—let's put it entirely out. But not Jesus. He will, if permitted, fan it into flame again.

Then, too, man is like a broken reed. The picture is that of a stick cut to use for support as one walks. And then it breaks—what shall we do? Break it into smaller pieces and throw it away? Yes, that is what we will do if we have not the spirit of Jesus.

Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Removing Partition Between the Rooms

HAVE you ever thought of removing the partition between your living and dining room but feared the ceiling would sag if supports were removed? Or, perhaps you have considered the idea and decided that after all it might not always be convenient to have the two rooms in one? Here is an answer to both of these questions.

The sketch shows the partition removed to give a greater feeling of space but the main supports have been left in. A balustrade division without spoiling the light between the two rooms makes a airy effect and a draw curtain matching the living room draperies make it possible to shut the dining room off when desired. By the clever use of curtaining throughout the two rooms are drawn together though they are still separate units.

NOTE—Here is news for homemakers. This sketch is from a new booklet by Mrs. Spears called MAKE YOUR OWN CURTAINS. This 32-page book is full of smart new curtain and drapery ideas with illustrated step-by-step directions for measuring, cutting, making and hanging all types from the simplest sash curtain to the most complicated lined over-drapery or stiffened valance. Whatever your curtain problem here is the answer. Order book by name and enclose 15 cents. Address:

MR. WINKLE GOES TO WAR

By THEODORE PRATT

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Forty-four-year-old Wilbert Winkle, who operates the Fixit repair shop, is notified by his draft board that he is in I-A. He breaks the bad news to his domineering wife, Amy, who suddenly becomes very tender. Mr. Winkle is sent to Camp Squibb, where he graduates from Motor Mechanics school, and then goes home on a furlough. After the furlough Mr. Winkle finds himself, with his friend, Mr. Tinker, in a big convoy. They land on the island of Talizo, where they meet several old pals. One day the Japs come. Mr. Winkle dives under a command car while Mr. Tinker shoots it out with a plane. Mr. Winkle is hit, Mr. Winkle grabs a machine gun and mows down the Japs.

CHAPTER XIII

As he aimed, the officer was passing Mr. Tinker. To Mr. Winkle's amazement, one of Mr. Tinker's legs moved out and tripped the man, sending him sprawling. Mr. Tinker's jump at him was more of a crawl, but he made it before the Jap could fire his pistol.

The hairy hands of Mr. Tinker found the officer's throat. They held on while the two rolled on the ground. Gradually the Jap's convulsive movements stopped and he lay still. Mr. Tinker continued to retain his grasp on the other's throat, viselike, even when, in turn, there was no more movement from him.

Mr. Winkle turned back to his main business.

He felt no shock when he saw more assault boats coming out of the mist in addition to the two now beaching themselves. He had only the determined desire to kill and kill again even when he knew he must be overpowered.

He didn't hear, above the noise of his gun, the trucks grinding to a stop in back of him with a shriek of brakes. For some time he wasn't aware that other men, live men, were in the fox hole with him and that still more were firing from the sand for some distance on either side.

He wasn't aware that other men, live men, were in the fox hole with him.

He didn't know when he left the fox hole and with the others ran upon the beach with a rifle in his hands. He was astounded, once, to note the bayonet on the end of the rifle, and that he had plunged it into a Jap soldier and was having difficulty in getting it out. Twist, he thought, that was it. He twisted, and the blade came free. It was true what they said.

He felt a sharp sting in his left shoulder.

On top of his head there was a blinding clang.

His helmet was knocked off. Something crashed on his bare head and after that he was aware of nothing.

Mr. Winkle opened his eyes cautiously. He had been conscious for a few minutes, but he couldn't place where he was.

The first thing he saw was the face of Jack Pettigrew. Jack had only a head, which floated in the air all by itself. The mouth in the head said, "Hello, Pop."

"So you made it, too," observed Mr. Winkle.

"Made it?" Jack's head inquired.

"We're dead, aren't we?" asked Mr. Winkle. "You were dead the last time I saw you. This is Heaven, I suppose. Or is it?" In some panic he demanded, "Which one?"

The head laughed. "We're in an Army hospital just outside of Los Angeles."

The rest of Jack came into focus. Clad in pajamas and a bathrobe, he was sitting on the edge of a white bed. There were lines of white beds.

"I don't understand," Mr. Winkle said. "We're supposed to be on Talizo. You—and the Japs..."

"The Japs," Jack grinned, "didn't get anywhere. We've taken the whole island since then. You saved it. You're a hero. You're going to get a medal. The President told about you in one of his speeches."

"And look at these papers," Jack rummaged in a locker between the beds and then held the front pages of newspapers so Mr. Winkle could read them. One of them was The Evening Standard. Mr. Winkle took it and saw big black letters which said:

WINKLE, HERO OF TALIZO

"I'm supposed to call the nurse if you wake up," Jack said. "You've been out for five weeks. You're not supposed to talk."

"You do the talking," Mr. Winkle ordered. "And lots of it."

"You don't have to worry," Jack said. "Mrs. Winkle knows. I went home to see my folks. I'm here now only for a check-up before I join my new company. We're headed for the Philippines this time."

"You left out something," Mr. Winkle said. "The most important part. The Alphabet, Freddie, and the others..."

In a low voice, Jack said, "I was the only one."

It was a moment before he could ask about Mr. Tinker. Then he spoke only his name.

"No," Jack told him.

At least, thought Mr. Winkle, Mr. Tinker had got his Jap himself. He would always cherish thinking of the sight of Mr. Tinker with his hands around the Japanese officer's throat.

"That's why I want to go back," Jack said.

"I'm going, too," Mr. Winkle told him.

Mr. Winkle enjoyed, instead of shying from, every moment of his reception when he arrived in Springfield. He beamed at the huge crowd waiting at the station. With satisfaction, he saw and heard the American Legion band which had turned out for him alone this time. He read the banners and posters people carried. He admired the decorations, one of which read unashamedly: "Our Hero."

There was Amy embracing him and murmuring brokenly, "Wilbert... Wilbert..."

"Look," he said. Right there before all the people he lifted his arm to shoulder height, telling Amy, "That's as far as it will go."

Amy stared at him, embarrassed and stricken. The crowd hushed.

"It's good enough for holding you," Mr. Winkle told his wife, putting his arm around her.

The crowd roared its approval, while Amy, blushing, whispered to him, "Wilbert, you're changed more than ever."

The Mayor stepped up and gave him the keys to the city, in the form of a large wooden key painted gold and festooned with gay ribbons.

Then came the most important part of the ceremony, the part that made Mr. Winkle most appreciative and brought a lump to his throat.

His own commanding officer being some distance away, it had been arranged for the Colonel who commanded the camp where Mr. Winkle was inducted into the Army to present him with the Distinguished Service Cross.

The Colonel read the citation from a scroll. "... awarded to Wilbert George Winkle... distinguished himself by extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against an armed enemy... beyond and above his duty..."

The Colonel pinned the medal on his tunic, stepped back and saluted him. Mr. Winkle was so surprised at being saluted first by an officer, and especially one of such rank as a Colonel, that he forgot to salute back. Instead, he found himself shaking hands with the Colonel.

In the Mayor's car, with the Mayor in front and Mr. Winkle and a weepy Amy alone in the back seat, they paraded through the town to the blaring accompaniment of the band and cheering people who threw a great many bits of paper from the buildings. Mr. Winkle waved and waved his good arm, and it was borne in upon him that it was most men's dream come true, notably because this time no one called out derisively.

Finally they were deposited in front of their house, where a number of people were gathered. Among them was Mr. Wescott, who had evidently come out to see for himself. And having seen, he didn't find any reason to laugh now. He couldn't say anything at all when he opened his mouth in that endeavor, but simply stood there with his lips parted, gaping.

Mr. Winkle greeted him warmly and shook hands before going on with Amy up their walk.

Mr. Onward, the reportographer, whom Mr. Winkle had seen at the station taking pictures, followed them up the walk. "Listen," Mr. Onward asked rather humbly, "how about an interview?"

"No," said Mr. Winkle, "no interview."

"But—" Mr. Onward began to plead.

"Use the same one you printed before," Mr. Winkle suggested.

"That was a good one."

Alone together in their house, Mrs. Winkle dabbed at her eyes with her handkerchief, touched his medal with one finger, dabbed some more, and asked, "Whoever would have thought—?"

The Colonel pinned the medal on his tunic.

"Not me," said Mr. Winkle.

"Not I," she corrected. She spoke a little sharply, as if trying to hide her emotions or expressing a desire to bring him down a peg in case his popularity might have gone to his head.

In trying to determine which it was, Mr. Winkle saw the answer to his speculation on whether or not Amy would continue in her new regard for him, or revert to the old. He found a number of things to support his belief that war had changed her as permanently as it had him.

She would not find it comfortable to henpeck a national hero.

COUNTRY CURED

By Homer Croy

Country Cured deals mainly with that part of rural America where the "corn is an endless green carpet tacked down here and there by a windmill." The smell of fresh plowed earth permeates it, while through it, too, run the homely daily acts and chores of the simple folk who have helped make America what it is today.

You will enjoy—perhaps more than anything you have ever read—reading this personal history of the Missouri farm boy who became one of America's famed novelists and a Hollywood writer of renown.

Rights and Rights

Human rights vs property rights! There's a good political battle-cry. Any fair-minded American is likely to declare himself for putting human rights first. A little thought, however, may start some trouble in finding distinctions and definitions. The right to earn a living must be a human right. But wages, food, clothing and shelter, the prime elements of a living, are property! One might find it interesting to make a list of an American's reasonable or guaranteed rights, and then see which ones can clearly be defined as either human or property rights. The conclusion may be that the words of a political slogan often have more sound than meaning. —Farm Journal.

THEY WANT GIRLS SWEET

The sophisticated, "vampire" type of woman is on the way out. The reason, reported Margaret Condos of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, is that the returning serviceman is going to look only for the sweet girl. "They're going to want girls of charm, not a shoddy imitation of an actress," said she. "The postwar woman must have that gleaming, just-washed look, not the pallor of cocktail lounge fever.

"Hair, too, will follow the back-to-nature trend, smooth and shining, cut to fit the face like a frame, and not a frozen adornment that can't be mussed." —Pathfinder Magazine

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The war sure has made a lot of changes in this old world of ours, hasn't it, Judge?"
"Plenty of them, John. One that few people realize is that the rubber producing center of the world is now right here in the United States."
"When the Japs conquered the big natural rubber producing centers of the world they thought they had us licked. But in two short years, thanks to American industry, we are now producing synthetic rubber enough to supply all our military and essential civilian needs."

"Our rubber experts knew how to make it but the problem was to get the huge amounts of industrial alcohol needed. Almost overnight the country's beverage distillers stopped making whiskey and converted 100% to the production of this vital ingredient. A high government official said recently this was "...an almost unparalleled example of the overnight conversion of an entire industry from peace to war."
"Come to think of it, Judge, it was a mighty fortunate thing the beverage distilling industry was in existence, wasn't it?"

THE REPUBLICAN RECORD

Agriculture and Industry know that the present Republican State Administration is waging a constant and unremitting battle to relieve farmers and business men from the harassing regulations and restrictions of federal bureaucracy.

The Republican Board of Supervisors has controlled County spending, and as a result the County government is in the strongest financial position it has been for years.

In Township, County and State, Republican officials have given the voters a responsible business-like administration of which they can be justly proud. They have justified the confidence the voters placed in them when they chose REPUBLICAN officials to administer their local government.

Governor Dewey knows farming by his own experience as a farm hand. He knows that a prosperous agriculture is essential to a prosperous country. When agriculture is able to buy the products of industry, industry flourishes and good jobs at good wages prevail.

Here's how
for your home

Clean your lamp bulbs,
reflectors
and shades

Lighting equipment gives as much as 50% more light when bulbs, bowls and shades are clean. Dust or grime blocks the flow of light.

Always disconnect lamps from outlets before cleaning. Wash glass or plastic bulbs, bowls and reflectors with luke-warm, soapy cloth. Rinse bowls or reflectors to remove soap, but do not dip bulbs under water. Wipe suds off bulbs with damp cloth. Dry bulbs, bowls and reflectors thoroughly before attaching them to fixture.

You'll get more light for your money if you follow these simple suggestions.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

Each progressive step of the ROCK ISLAND LINES is part and parcel of the Program of Planned Progress inaugurated in 1937. Under this Program is a solid foundation of fine railroading tradition reaching back 92 years... to 1852 when the ROCK ISLAND LINES were established.

Only upon such a foundation could such a Program be built.

With fine modern equipment and 8000 miles of well-maintained right-of-way stretching through 14 middle western states, the war found this railroad system ready. It was equal to the kind of wartime job which is justifying America's patronage and admiration.

In 1944... still keeping ahead of its war job... ROCK ISLAND introduced a fleet of powerful, fast Diesel freight locomotives and a fleet of the latest type steam freight locomotives. Preliminary installations of radio communication between dispatcher, engineers and freight conductors were made. Centralized train control—the miracle of modern railroading—was proved and further developed.

ROCK ISLAND is continuing to move onward and upward... still planning. With the coming of peace, you will find ROCK ISLAND ready for that glorious era, too.

As yesterday—and today—so tomorrow ROCK ISLAND's sole purpose is to provide the finest in transportation

WOMEN'S SERVICE CLUB NEWS

By Mrs. Leslie Clark

The Christmas boxes for our boys overseas have all been wrapped and are on their way. We hope they will bring a bit of cheer to our boys who are fighting in every theatre of war. There are two boxes being sent out this year, because of the different sizes of the shipping boxes and the packaged articles.

Mr. and Mrs. John Balaz met their son Sgt. Harold Balaz in Chicago last Sunday as he passed thru the city on his way to Aberdeen, Md.

Mrs. Philip Hacker Jr., has received word that her husband is now in France. He has been overseas for two months.

Two of Mokena boys are now in Germany: Pfc. Robert Frisch and Frederick L. Clark. They have been on Germany soil since the first part of September. Cpl. Arrian Yunker of Mokena has been with them. Pvt. Chas. Burkhardt has been made a corporal. He is stationed in the Admiralty Islands in the south Pacific. Congratulations Charles!

S 2-C Arthur Hostert is now stationed at Jacksonville, Fla. Mrs. Victor Demkow left Wednesday for Gulfport, Miss., to be with her husband who is attending the army school there.

Last Monday night the Oilers winning streak of 9 straight was snapped by the powerful Bankers as they took two games from them also the amazing Smokers equaled the winning streak when they swept 3 games from the Robins. By winning 3 games the Smokers share the lead with the Oilers.

The V-Eighters took two games from the Paperhangers and are in 4th position four games from the lead. Hamilton and Scarth both are rolling back in form so watch the V-Eighters and Paperhangers start moving.

Charlie Burkhardt came thru with a 603 series and a high game of 231 but the powerful Bankers still took two games from his team. If Charlie keeps clicking the Oilers will be a hard team to beat.

Well, Eddie Tierney, what do you think of Gus Braun's team so far?

LADIES BOWLING NEWS

The Mokena Ladies' Bowling League swung into their 6th nite of bowling with a high series of 500 bowled by Lydia Groth putting her team, "The Robins" in second place League Monday night.

Ann Yunker did her level best, by wearing Mr. Burkhardt's hat, but to no avail, her team, "The Orioles" lost three games to Herta Hamilton's team, "The Hawks", who are now in first place. We need more boosters. Where are you men on Tuesday nites? Virginia Bruggeman you let your team, "The Owls" down, and hope you will be out next Tuesday nite a hooting for your team.

Mrs. Lilly Cooper left Monday nite for Ontario, Wis., to spend this week with her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Bassett and family and whose son, Seaman Kenneth Bassett who is home this week from boot training at Farragut, Idaho.

Mrs. Ida Ketner of Joliet is spending this week with her cousin, Mrs. Wm. Semmler and family.

Funny things sometimes happen when you go away from home. This was evidenced last week when Mr. and Mrs. Harold Spiess were away on a trip the pet dog of Fred Rauch presented them with a new dog family found under the front porch.
Dog gone it.

Telephone equipment is fighting on every front

Wherever America's Army, Navy and Air Forces are fighting, there is telephone equipment aplenty. For this is a war of fast movement—and victory demands fast communications.

Telephone equipment is being made here at home for fighting use overseas; in factories that in peacetime supply civilian telephone needs.

That is why there is now a shortage—and why you may have been asked to wait your turn for home telephone service.

Fascinating Designs
For Flower Boxes

Pattern No. Z9298

FIVE baby animals peep beguilingly over shoulders—and become fascinating designs for indoor flower boxes. Outlines for the fronts and backs of the pup, kitten, rabbit, lamb and duck are on Pattern No. Z9298.

Trace these outlines to plywood or thin lumber and cut out with jig, coping or keyhole saw. Then nail the fronts and backs to small troughs and paint in natural colors. Put cacti, succulents or other small plants in these boxes.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

Send your name, address, pattern number and 15 cents, the price of the pattern, to:

Freak Accidents

Many freak accidents occurred in the year 1943, but the following are the prize ones for that period, as announced by the National Safety Council:

First Prize: To soldier who was welded in his sleeping bag when a bolt of lightning struck his zipper.

Second Prize: To soldier whose left leg was broken by a coconut which was felled by a stray bullet.

Third Prize: To Washington rancher who was tossed in the air and stripped of all clothing except shoes and eyeglasses by the spinning reel of a combine.

"JUST how good," I asked a well known fight conditioner, "will Joe Louis and Billy Conn be after the war is over and they are back at the old trade?"

"O. K.," he said, "if they are not held in the army too long. I understand Louis is up around 230 pounds now and Conn weighs 210. But given time I feel sure that Louis can get back to 210 or 212 pounds and that Conn can make 190, which would be a more useful weight in the heavyweight group. Both have been giving boxing exhibitions at various camps, also acting as boxing instructors now and then, and this should help to check any big slump in form.

"Louis has always been a hard worker. Before entering army service his average road work was about five miles a day. He isn't young in a fighting way, but he isn't too old. He is still younger than Jim Corbett was in his famous comeback against Jim Jeffries, younger than Fitzsimmons was when he stopped Corbett at Carson City.

"Conn will have little trouble getting down to 190 pounds. He can get even lower. He is much younger than Louis and is still short of his prime. Conn at 185 or even 190 pounds can still be fast—and be a much harder puncher. It is a sure thing that the first defense Louis makes of his title will be against Conn. Each has had about the same war handicap so far as ring training is concerned."

There are reports about that Louis and Conn will be asked to put on a war charity fight some time later. This would be completely unfair to Louis who has already given war and navy relief two free contests.

Louis still owes the government over $150,000 in the way of income taxes and the problem he faces now is paying this back. Even if he received $200,000 for his first fight after the war he would be lucky to keep $40,000 of this amount, with new taxes piled on. It would take four major fights to get him nearly even. Washington could hardly afford to ask Louis for another charity show after throwing away at least $1,000,000 for the Red Cross or army and navy relief by refusing to let Army and Navy football teams meet in Philadelphia or New York.

We still feel this insane switch to Annapolis before some 10,000 spectators will be changed later on. We have had some odd and bewildering curves thrown at us from Washington, but nothing quite as baffling as the present location of the next Army-Navy game.

Putting on Weight

It has been a matter of 17 years now since Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey met in their second battle in Chicago. Since that date Tunney has added 25 pounds and Dempsey has packed on 20. They are both now around the same weight at 210 or 212 units of displacement.

I have seen both recently and the two of them look to be as physically fit as men of their age can hope to be. Both are many years older than Louis, and Louis is many pounds heavier than either.

Big Gate Promised

Mike Jacob's mouth begins to water and his teeth make an extra clatter when he thinks of the next Louis-Conn collision.

If fought today or in the near future, with over $25,000,000,000 in loose change floating around, it would wreck all past receipts by at least a million or more. It might easily be a $4,000,000 show if Mike could get away with the prices he could get, from $200 a seat on down. This would be all right with the government and the state, for both would get plenty.

This may seem to be an extravagant estimate, but how many believed a while back that the three New York tracks would shove $400,000,000 through the mutual windows in 1944, with a similar amount passing through the hands of the bookmakers? This latter, of course, is a guess. But the amount is still a healthy hunk of change.

The surest bet on the calendar after the war is that the Louis-Conn party will be one of the biggest sporting and financial shows ever known.

Remember Gerhardt?

"The greatest natural athlete I ever saw," says Maj. Lou Beard, "was a West Pointer by the name of Charley Gerhardt. You may have heard of him lately. He was the major-general who first broke through at Saint Lo in France.

"Gerhardt had played little baseball when he came to West Point but in a few months he was one of the greatest infielders we ever had. He had played no football at all, but shoved into the quarterback spot, he was an outstanding star."

Skim Milk Fights
Costly Pig ParasitesExperiments Prove
Value of Diet Plan

Internal parasites that attack pigs may be largely eliminated by liberal feedings of skim milk, according to department of agriculture investigators. During recent experiments some pigs received skim milk daily and others were given it as their only feed for three days at intervals of several weeks. Severe exposure to parasites was provided.

In a 57-day test, the pigs getting milk daily made an average gain of 50 pounds, and those fed grain exclusively gained only 40 pounds, on the average. Examination of carcasses of the milk-fed groups showed less than half as many parasites as the grain-fed pigs, and some of the milk-fed pigs were practically free of such pests in spite of the severe exposure.

A second experiment of 98 days duration, under similar conditions except that intermittent skim-milk feedings were two weeks apart, confirmed the first. The milk-fed pigs gained from 83 to 115 pounds, on the average, and were found to be free from parasites or to have only a few. The grain-fed pigs, similarly exposed to infection, gained a fraction less than 32 pounds in the 98 days and at the end of the experiment were heavily infested with intestinal worms.

It is pointed out that under practical conditions, sanitary practices and general good management should be used to protect animals against exposure to parasites as far as possible. When the presence of parasites is suspected, however, and skim milk is available, beneficial results may be obtained from the latter's use as a parasiticide as well as a feed. Satisfactory gains, the scientists declare, and freedom from severe parasitism can be attained by feeding milk moderately each day or by giving large quantities for a few days at intervals of two or three weeks.

Application of the results of the "skim milk" experiments in war time should be governed by relative current needs for milk and pork. It is pointed out that in the central western area, where most of the country's hogs and many of the cattle are raised, the usual farm practice is to separate the milk, selling only the cream for butter making. Large quantities of skim milk are thus made available.

Agriculture
In the News

Money in Feathers.

The discovery that chicken feathers contain 100 per cent protein promotes them from a fertilizer to an excellent material for plastics and other articles of commerce.

Machines have already been perfected for the conversion of feathers into protein and plastics. The value of feathers as a soft, warmth producing material has long been recognized. Many of the Russian army coats are lined with feathers. In the U. S. a army feathers have proved of great value in the work of camouflage.

Chicken

Other feather products include a substitute yarn, a plywood adhesive for planes and PT boats, insulation material and a plywood material. The plastic can be used for sewing up wounds, its great advantage being that as the body heals, it absorbs the stitches. Serious attempts are being made in various countries to convert feathers into human food.

Tractor Faults

If the tractor lacks power the fault may lie in lack of compression, improper ignition timing or faulty carburetor setting. Leaky or broken piston rings, evidenced by lack of compression and undue hissing in the crankcase, causes serious loss of power. The spark plug gap setting, spark timing and carburetor adjustment should always be in accordance with instruction book of recommendations furnished by the tractor manufacturer.

Notes of a Newspaperman:

Sir William Beveridge, the British plan man, has cooked up a new one to be announced after the Armistice. . . . The gamblers who bought big property in Miami Beach for the de luxe season will get an awful shock. There'll be no gambling, vows the chief of gendarmes. . . . CBS is grooming Johnny Morgan to replace Fred Allen until the latter resumes. . . . The American Fed. of Musicians is dickering with the Institute of Public Relations to woo the press back for its president, James C. Petrillo. The fee involved is reported at $100,000. . . . Eileen Stafford and G. Ross are betrothed. . . . A nobleman in town has a juicy racket. He charges social climbers $100 a night to be seen with him in the better places.

Those who sneer at foreign-born Americans were given a whacking across their derrieres by columnist Lowell Mellett, formerly of the White House staff. Colymed Mellett: "I am also an immigrant; not a first generation immigrant, to be sure, since the first of the family came over during the Revolutionary War, but an immigrant just the same. I can't claim any credit for being an American. Sidney Hillman can. It was his own idea, not the idea of a great-great-grandparent!"

James W. Miller of Muskogee, Okla., corrects our observation that F. Sinatra will net about $25,000 from his annual "take" this year of $1,450,000. Mr. Miller, a public accountant, says Frank will make more than 25 Gs. He will net a little more than $75,000. Hot diggity! . . . Ernest Hemingway will start another war if he isn't careful. He writes: "I think any writer, especially a war correspondent, is dull in conversation. It's only the phonies that are personally colorful." . . . The Broadwayites, for the 11th year, visited the grave of Variety's founder, Sime. . . . Abbott and Costello, who send cartons of ciggies to troops overseas, happily wrap each carton in "the funnies." . . . While overseas Frances Langford never drank the hot tea, which has a medicinal taste. The torrid South Pacific, strangely enough, has no hot water. So she used the tea to wash her face.

The Writer's War Board devised a subway and trolley car card showing babies (of all color) which read: "Must They Die in World War III?" . . . The text continues: "Yes! Unless you work now for lasting peace after victory." . . . The cards are distributed by Americans United for World Organization, Inc. . . . Transit companies in several cities are displaying them. . . . Mayor LaGuardia hoped N. Y. subway trains would do the same. . . . In reporting the refusal of John H. Delaney (chairman of the Board of Transportation) the N. Y. Times said in part: "Mr. Delaney says he turned down this particular poster 'because it was not of local interest. . . . I don't intend to give away free publicity to any organization seeking to promote peace on its own. Our Government is well equipped to do that!'" . . . Not of local interest!

Income tax sleuths are following the columns closely to check on the reports of cafe society playgirls and their "incomes." . . . The Wind-sors have been plagued by crank letters. Too much publicity plus their address. . . . Bill Tilden, one-time world's tennis champ, tried acting some years ago. He has taken an option on a play which will be produced soon. . . . Vogue feature editor, Ruth Portugal, is in Martha Foley's "Best Short Stories" annual this time. . . . Another fashion mag editor, Dorothy Wheelock of Harper's Bazaar, relaxes all night by writing detective thrillers.

New York Novelette: You've read about the case in the papers. But not this angle. . . . It was at a society party several years ago. The hostess' jewels disappeared. . . . Suspicion pointed to a pretty young girl. . . . The detectives had the goods on her and pressed the hostess to let them make the arrest. . . . Another guest volunteered to help the crying suspect. . . . He was a lawyer. . . . His skillful plea won the hostess over. She didn't press the charge. . . . The girl was let go and married him! . . . Many times thereafter he had to do his best legal work getting his bride out of similar jams. . . . Recently she was arrested again—for allegedly stealing jewels. . . . But he can't help her now. . . . He has a bigger case. . . . Fighting for his country.

Madeleine Carroll, the actress, rates your salute. She shelved a successful career to join the Red Cross overseas without trumpeting or fanfare. . . . Our pet answer to those who use the "He's a foreigner!" routine is to remind them the Statue of Liberty is also an immigrant. . . . Oh, that Winchell!

Washington hears that General H. Miller, demoted in London by Eisenhower for allegedly revealing the invasion date, will be retired as general after the war.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

John L. Collier, president of The B. F. Goodrich Co., believes that it will be at least two years after the first capture of Far East rubber-producing territories before normal operations can be restored. Meanwhile, synthetic and the constantly decreasing amount of natural rubber in the U. S. will have to take care of our requirements.

Every time an escort of 1,000 fighter planes goes into action on the battle front or on bombing raids, some 50 tons of rubber are being carried into the air. The U. S. War Department figures show that the average fighter plane has 105 pounds of rubber somewhere in its construction.
